

Saturday, November 5, 1842.

Notice Advertisement in to-days paper, under the head of "New Fall and Winter Goods." The Messrs. Heard's have just received a superior lot of well selected goods, as their advertisement will show. We can say nothing in favor of other establishments—neither can we tell whether they have fine Stocks or not—as they don't advertise.

We were in a hunt last week, in which ten noble Bucks and as many beautiful Does were made to bite the dust. Our friend H. H. felled three; C. P. S., Esq., three; J. H. 3; McC. 3; Col. J. H. three; H. Y. H. 2; Major P. one, and six snags at a pet; and ourself two and a Wild Car.

The deer were under full headway. W. Y. is the best driver that ever hallooed in the Valley; and J. Y.'s and our Shif's Dogs are unsurpassed.

WHAT DO PLANTERS SAY OF THE TIMES.—Not a day passes but what we hear complaints from this portion of our citizens, about the scarcity of money—the low price of Cotton, and the hardness of the times. The Loco Focos lay all the distress of the country on the Whig party. Well let them do so—nothing more could be expected. Now, does not every body know, that had the life of Gen. Harrison been spared, we should at this time be enjoying the benefits of a good sound circulating currency. The work had been begun, but by an act of Providence our Chieftain was taken from among us, and in his place was seated a base traitor, blasting the happy results that would have come about, had not the party been deceived in him. It is always the case, however, that we find men in every country, ready to laud the acts of men, though it be at the expense of the destruction of their country.

HARD MONEY PRICES.—With other notices which we are receiving daily, to the same effect, we see it stated in the New Orleans Bulletin, that about two hundred bales (new crop) Cotton were sold a short time ago, in Natchez, averaging about five cents per pound. Most glorious times. This is what we call Loco Focoism in full bloom!

IS THE PILL EASILY SWALLOWED.—That tyro of the Globe—the double compound concentrated exorcism of Loco Focoism—Amos Kendall,—says that "Mr. Calhoun will not tell the truth when a lie will answer his purpose." What do you think of this, Messrs. Calhoun men of the "Guard" and "Independent Democrat?" Is this not Gospel language from the acknowledged leader of the Democracy? Had you not better haul down the Calhoun Banner?

MR. CLAY'S late visit to the Capitol of Indiana, caused the assemblage of thousands of freemen to hear him speak on the great questions of National policy. Ex Governor Noble, of that Noble State, was the chosen Noble of the Whigs, to address Mr. Clay on his arrival, and he performed the task in a Noble manner too. The response of Mr. Clay, was of two hours length. It was received by the tens of thousands present, with acclamations which made the "welkin ring."

Mr. Clay always went over to the side of power—while Mr. Calhoun changed against power.—Independent Democrat.

Is this mere statement all the proof, we shall have to verify the fact of this charge. Mr. Clay always went over to the side of power—while Mr. Calhoun changed against power! Did not Mr. Calhoun go over to the side of power, when he deserted the Whig ranks during the first year of Mr. Van Buren's Administration, and entered the Trojan Camp of the enemy? Has it not always been the first rule in Mr. Calhoun's political text book, to keep on the side of the dominant party? We answer yes. And now, we defy Mr. HANDY, to point out one single time when Mr. Clay deserted his party to go "over to the side of power." In '44 we may in reality expect to see Mr. Clay the foremost in the ranks of those who claim the "power" to rule the destinies of America.

DON'T LET US CROW OVER LITTLE FLORIDA.—"The elections in Middle Florida," says the New Orleans Bulletin, "after a most animated struggle, terminated in favor of the Whigs; they having succeeded in the election of six members of the House of Representatives, whilst the Loco Focos have but four. Four out of five Whig Senators are also elected." This will do—but don't let us crow over Little Florida!

Herald of the 27th ult., "passed through this place on Saturday last, on his way to the Republic of Texas." Mr. Runnells carries with him, to his new home—the "lone star" of the South—the best wishes of his old constituents of Mississippi, for his success and happiness through life.

The latest accounts from the city of Mobile, are that the Yellow Fever was still on the increase. Strangers are warned not to enter the city at this time, nor until this disastrous malady is cut from among its citizens by Old Jack Frost, or cooling showers of rain.

BENNETT of the New York Herald, seems to have lost his "first love," for his Accidency, John Tyler. The praise formerly bestowed upon this traitor by Bennett, we have no doubt in proportion to the amount of Treasury paper he was privileged to dip from the public coffers. Now that he has said something in his paper, that did not exactly agree with the notions of John Tyler's John Jones, he has been kicked from the public crib. The way Bennett is using up Tyler, John Jones, and the Corporal's Guard, at this time, is enough to make even an honest functionary tremble in his shoes. Go it Bennett. Hit him again—he has no friends here!

Specie is still arriving at New Orleans—but it does not improve the "times."

Port Gibson Correspondent.

This sentence we find in the Correspondent, and yet its Editor is advocating, with all his power, an exclusive metallic currency. At least he is a staunch Loco Foco—which is evidence enough to prove the fact. The day never will arrive, when an amount of specie can be found in circulation, sufficient to transact the business of the country. There is not a civilized Government on earth, but what issues, in some form or other, bills of credit. It always so happens, from the emergency of the times, that they are forced to do so—or the consequences might prove their utter prostration and ruin. The people of this Union, are now bleeding at every pore—from the fact that they have no currency at all.—"Facts are stubborn things." At least to some people.

The Loco Focos are crowing loudly over a few victories in the several State elections.—This is all right. Let them shout while they have the opportunity, for it will be but a short time that they can boast of that privilege.—In '44 the death knell of the party will be sung from the doors and the windows of every house in the Union. For instance, they've shouted over Ohio and Indiana, two amongst the foremost States in the Union for Whiggery. If any one of them in those parts, are really in earnest, and believe that the Loco Foco candidate for the Presidency in '44 stands the least chance in either of those States,—we are requested by a friend to make it known to that person, that he has several hundred acres of land lying in the Yazoo valley, which he will wager on the result. Dare any one take it up!

A NEW COMPANION.—Before us is the prospectus of a new Whig journal, soon to be commenced in the city of Vicksburg. Its caption is to be the "Hills City Eagle." Mr. M. N. PREWITT, known for the past eighteen months, as the able, indefatigable, and fearless Editor of the "Mississippi Creole," is to be the proprietor, and will wield a powerful pen in the support of the true principles of the Whig party. Let him speak a few words for himself. He says:—

"The Eagle will be devoted to Politics, Trade and Agriculture, with such other subjects as appertain to the legitimate duties of the public journalist. We shall labor with all becoming zeal and the best of our humble ability to secure the election of the great Western Statesman,

'The forum's champion and the people's chief.'

HENRY CLAY, to the next Presidency; advocating the great principles of the Whig party, a Bank, a Tariff for Revenue, a modification of the Veto power, &c., &c., to be more particularly specified hereafter.

Treachery, such as that which disgraces John Tyler; dishonesty, in the broad and intelligible form of Repudiation, and the destructive radicalism of ultra-locofocoism, will be opposed with all the energy we possess.

"The Merchant will be furnished with the latest Commercial intelligence; the Planter with the state of the Markets, and matter pertaining to Agriculture; the Mechanic with cheering inducements to renewed industry and improvement. Every proper effort will be made to exalt and purify the public morals; to instil a new and regenerating feeling into the public mind; to exercise a healthful and useful influence, treating the honest opinions of opponents with due deference, on all occasions."

Wanted—most a-w-fu-ly—ten dozen good fat coons.—Port Gibson Correspondent.

Poor fellow! Can't some one down about Port Gibson supply his wants. If he can't get a coon, we suppose upon a pinch he would take a Skunk. From the style of his editorials, one might readily suppose he could not tell the difference.

DELPHIA.

As we have not the space to lay before our readers, the full reported proceedings of a great Mass meeting of the Whigs lately convened in the city of Philadelphia, we will content ourselves with giving a few of the spirited Resolutions which were presented to said meeting, and passed by unanimous acclamation. The Hon. John Sergeant opened the meeting in a few brief and eloquent remarks, and was followed by the Hon. John M. Clayton and other distinguished disciples of the same stamp and cast. The Bank question—the Tariff question—and all others of import to the country were handled in a masterly style, and giving the best of proof, from the long and loud cheers of the assembly, that the sentiments of the speakers met the approbation of all those present. As all will see by the resolutions, Mr. CLAY was the choice of the Meeting for the Presidency in '44:

Resolved, That we regard the distribution of the proceeds of the sales of the public lands among the several States as demanded by the highest considerations of public faith, public justice, and State rights. The original compact with the National Government having provided for such distribution after the payment of the old national debt, which debt having long since been paid, the land fund has become the rightful property of the several States, and is now essentially necessary to many of them for the maintenance of their pledged faith and the honest payment of their public debts.

Resolved, That we believe the purity of our system of National Government will be best preserved by limiting the eligibility of the President to a single term; by frowning down all attempts to concentrate in the hands of the Executive the power of making laws and controlling the purse of the nation, and by periodically bringing to the bar of public opinion, through the freedom of speech and of the press, all departures made by the President, or by any subordinate officer, from an honest, faithful and impartial execution of the powers strictly given to them by the Constitution and laws.

Resolved, That, in reviewing the history of our beloved country, we find that the acknowledgment and enforcement of the principles above set forth, commencing with the termination of our Revolutionary struggle, and acted upon for upwards of forty years, conducted the nation to a height of prosperity and power contrasting most strongly with the distress, depression, and public and private ruin, which have ensued upon their abandonment; and we do, therefore, pledge to our country and to each other, that beginning with our local ticket, and carrying it on through every election for officers of the State and Nation, we will strive to elevate to places of public trust those only who, by tried affection to those principles, will be able to resist the temptations of power and place, and restore to the country peace, prosperity and union.

Resolved, That Henry Clay, of Kentucky, by his profound statesmanship and steady attachment to the fundamental principles of Government professed by us, is entitled to the first place in the affections of the Whig party, and that, responding to his spontaneous nomination for the Presidency by the millions of freemen who have already publicly announced him as their candidate, we, the Democratic Whig party of the city and county of Philadelphia, on the most sacred political spot in the whole world, pledge ourselves to our country to use every honorable effort to elevate him to that office, and thereby secure under Providence, the blessings of good Government well and faithfully administered.

The Boston Times says that the Hon. Rufus Choate will not support the Whig candidate for the Presidency.

Port Gibson Correspondent.

Well, who do you suppose cares a fig for that. Take him. A Choate [Shout] can never be permitted to remain in our ranks. We always looked upon him as a stray CHOATE [Shout] while he was sneaking through our camp. As birds of a feather, generally flock together—we suppose the same rule would work in relation to CHOATES, [Shouts], so take this CHOATE [Shout] and make the best of him you can.

A negro fellow living in Cincinnati, was shot, not long since, while in the act of robbing a house. He died in about two hours after the wound was inflicted.

HONEST JOHN DAVIS.—A shrewd friend remarked to us the other day that he had never known the sobriquet "honest," attached to any man's name by his neighbors, unless that man in good faith most richly deserved it.—And at the same time he significantly asked us, did we ever hear of Daniel Webster's neighbors or those of John Tyler designate these individuals by such an epithet? Here what the Dedham Patriot says of "honest John Davis:—

"A tower of strength—the mighty champion of the rights of the laborer—the fearless, able and eloquent defender of the principles that guided our illustrious forefathers in the great struggle for liberty—the man who, when the late administration declared war against the honest working men of the North, through their great champion, James Buchanan, dared to rise and meet his foe. That foe fell before him and the blow of John Davis, honest John Davis, of Massachusetts, was adorned with as bright a laurel as ever adorned the brow of a Roman, in the palmist days of that republic. John Davis—An honest man, the noblest work of God."

HENRY CLAY IN MASSACHUSETTS.

The steady Whigs of Massachusetts, true to the well-sustained character of their commonwealth, are not likely to be turned from any purpose they have resolved upon. The nomination of Henry Clay for the Presidency, made by acclamation in the Whig Convention at Boston, and cordially responded to throughout the State, will lose nothing of its validity, though Webster's approbation may not be given to the act. The Boston Atlas, in an article on this subject, suggested by Mr. Webster's speech at Faneuil Hall, thus speaks:

"HENRY CLAY IS THE WHIG CANDIDATE OF MASSACHUSETTS FOR THE NEXT PRESIDENCY"—and as surely as he lives until the day of election, and Massachusetts exists, as a Commonwealth, to give her vote on that occasion, so surely he will receive her vote. Who can forget the thrilling scene that occurred at the late Convention—when, after the nomination of Governor and Lieut. Governor, Edward A. Newton, of Pittsfield, a staunch and sterling Whig—a man well known, not only in his own county, but all over the Commonwealth, for his intelligence and integrity—a representative of the sturdy yeomanry occupying the hills of Berkshire, the remotest portion of our Commonwealth, and the least likely to be operated upon by any unfair political influence—who can forget what occurred, when, thus circumstanced, Edward A. Newton rose, and moved the Convention to proceed, in accordance with what he stated to be the wishes of the People, to the visa voce nomination of candidates for the next Presidency and Vice Presidency? Who can forget the uncontrollable burst with which the name of Henry Clay was shouted from every part of the Hall.

"We have lived over forty-five years in Boston—and have been familiar with almost every public meeting that has been held in Faneuil Hall, within that time—but we do not recollect to have ever heard there, a more active, spontaneous and heart-stirring outbreak of joy and approbation than that which followed the announcement of the Chair, that HENRY CLAY, OF KENTUCKY, WAS THE CANDIDATE OF THE WHIGS OF MASSACHUSETTS. Where then were the cold and the doubting? Why did not some one of that council of twelve hundred rise, and advance his doubts of the expediency of that measure? Not a voice was heard, to gainsay its propriety. Not a breath of hesitation, not a whisper of doubt, not a sight of regret, found utterance in Old Faneuil that day. All was joy and gratulation. The shout of applause took the force of unanimity. The voice that reared the old Hall, as a cradle, was like that which the FATHERS sent forth, when they had taken that important step towards shaking off the despotism that hung over them. That voice was the commingled effort of the free People who inhabit the Commonwealth, from the very summit-hills of Berkshire down to the arid which old Barnstable stretches out into the ocean, and even to her outermost islands.

"Who then, shall pronounce this proceeding unauthorized? Who shall say that this Convention exceeded its power? Who shall intimate that its voice was not the voice of the Whigs of this State? No one who was within the walls of that Hall, that day, will presume to say so. The objection is out of season.—The plea is put in too late. The case is already settled. The People gave the instructions. The delegates obeyed them. The decision is satisfactory—and the People are only awaiting the proper time to give it their final confirmation.

"We reiterate the assurance that the Whigs of Massachusetts will do their duty, and their whole duty, faithfully and manfully, at the ensuing elections. There is work to be done, labor to be performed—difficulties to be met and overcome. This the Whigs know, and they will be prepared for it. Massachusetts may be relied upon as a Whig State—firm—unflinching—true to herself and the Country.

REPUTATION.—In the late elections in Maryland, the proposition of repudiation met with a signal rebuke. The State is heavily in debt, and in some of the counties repudiation tickets were put up. In Washington county, it received, in three districts, not a single vote; in one district, two of the candidates on it received each one vote, and the other, two more. Throughout the county, the highest repudiating candidate received 123 votes, the lowest 55.

In the reigns of the first kings Edward, of England, those monarchs always slept on straw beds, which were then the highest luxury.

J. HEARD & BROTHER, 35-46.

Carrollton, November 1, 1842.

THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI,

CHOCTAW COUNTY.

Probate Court, October Term, A. D. 1842.

ORDERED, That citation issue, and that publication be made for four weeks in the Carrollton Pioneer, a newspaper published in the town of Carrollton, Carroll county, Mississippi, requiring Margaret Shannon, Administratrix of the Estate of Edward Shannon, deceased, to be and personally appear before the Probate Court for this county on the fourth Monday of November next, and render in her accounts as Administratrix of said estate, and make her annual settlement with said Court as Administratrix as aforesaid, or the said letters of administration will be revoked.

A true copy from the Minutes.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, this 25th day October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-two.

ANDREW P. HARRIS, Ck.

October, 29, 1842. 34-4w.

Commissioner's Sale.

IN obedience to a decretal order, of the District Chancery Court of the State of Mississippi, made at Carrollton, at the June Term 1842, of the said Court, I shall offer for sale, to the highest bidder, on Thursday the 8th of December next, upon the plantation of Jesse Meek, in Carroll county, the following described real and personal property belonging to the said Jesse Meek, or so much thereof as will satisfy and discharge the indebtedness of the said Jesse Meek to James Meek, as Administrator of Samuel Meek, deceased, as appears by account taken by me, and all costs, viz:

The S. W. 1/4, and W. 1/4 of N. W. 1/4, and W. 1/4 of S. E. 1/4, of Section No. 2, Sections Nos. 3 and 4, the E. 1/4 of S. E. 1/4 of Section No. 5, the N.
